SHARON GOLDBERG

1951-1967

We are all together
Equal in inability
To do the things we should —
Like,
Living.
We fear the unknown
Yet,
Wreak havoc with what is ours.
What have we left?
We are absurdities
The way we now exist.
We must consecrate our lives
With action.
For, as we have been told,
Life is not forever.
And, still, we never really understood.
We are innocent,
No matter what the story
Whatever example held up to us
We go on
As ants
Fabricating our vain little worlds
Heedless of the giants who walk over us
Unknowing of the damage they cause.
Surely we shall learn to live our lives
If not for our own selves,
Then for those who now know better.
